ASSAULTS, &c. (IRELAND).

RETURN to an ORDER of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 28 May 1846;—for,

A RETURN "of all Aggravated Assaults; of all Assaults endangering Life; of all Incendiary Fires; of every Demand or Robbery of Arms; of all cases of Persons appearing Armed; of all Unlawful Oaths administered or tendered; of all Threatening Notices or Letters delivered or posted; of all Malicious Injuries to Property; and of all Firings into Dwellings, in Ireland, since the 31st day of December 1845, up to the latest Time, as specially Reported by the Police; specifying the Time and Place at which each of such Offences was committed, together with the Name and Condition in Life of the Parties injured in Person or Property in each Case, with the supposed Causes thereof; and also, whether any Person or Persons have been Committed to Prison for each of said Offences; all said Returns to be arranged in Columns."

Note 1.—This Return does not include outrages or injuries committed in the cases designated in the Monthly Returns as "House Attacks," "Assaults on Police," "Levelling," "Turning up Land," or "Cutting, Maiming, or Killing Cattle."

Note 2.—The usage of the Constabulary Office, in making up Returns of Crime at the close of each calendar month, is to include only the offences of which Special Reports have been received during the course of such month. In the case of a crime committed on one of the last days of a month, the details can scarcely reach the Inspector-General in time to be inserted in the Return for the month in which it occurred, and it is therefore included necessarily in the ensuing Monthly Return.

In the preparation of the Document now forwarded, due regard has been had to the precise terms of the Order of the House of Commons, and each offence has been returned in the month in which it actually occurred. A critical collation of the present Return with other Returns embracing similar periods, furnished by this Department, and prepared in the usual way, will therefore show some slight variance in the number of offences, and which variance, it will be seen, is unavoidable.

In the absence of the Inspector-General,

Constabulary-Office, Dublin Castle,
5 June 1846.

W. Miller,
Deputy Inspector-General.

(Sir James Graham.)
